The Parable of the wicked servant

It is His purpose to alarm him by this threat, so He might bring him to supplication, not that he should be sold ...Why then did He not do this, nor forgive the debt before the account? He did it desiring to teach him from how many obligations He is delivering him, that in this way at least he might become more mild towards his fellow-servant ...He gave more than he asked, remission and forgiveness of the entire debt ...But even so, He willed that the other also seem to contribute something, that he might not be exceedingly covered with shame, and that he being schooled in his own calamities, might be indulgent to his fellow servant ...Let us, the covetous, listen well, for even to us is the word spoken. Let us hearken also, the merciless, and the cruel, for not to others are we cruel, but to ourselves. When then you are minded to be revengeful, consider that against yourself are you revengeful, not against another, that you are binding up your own sins, not your neighbor's ...Now the sentence is of much indignation, and vengeance and punishment ...Two things therefore He requires here, both to condemn ourselves for our sins, and to forgive others ...and from the heart.
